

Cranford High School Mathematics Department – Khan Academy

The Khan Academy is a free website that provides video explanations on many topics, including mathematics, science, economics, computer science, humanities, and test prep.

This can be a useful tool to help you preview future course material or to review material that you learned in class. This can also be helpful if you miss a class period and need to learn material. The Khan Academy is also a great tool to help review for tests and quizzes.

You can create an account, which will track your usage and allow you to continue in a sequence. If you prefer you do not need to create an account and can just use the site to review topics.

You can find the topic you want by either searching for it or selecting the area of study from the Library. Once you select the topic from the Library you can further narrow your search by looking at the next group of choices.

After watching the video you can select the Practice this Concept button to try questions regarding what you just watched. You can also ask for hints on how to solve the problem.

To view the website visit: <http://www.khanacademy.org>